DANCING ACADEMY.—We noticed last week that Prof. Vegas had returned to our city and opened his dancing school at Odd Fellows' hall. It will be remembered that Mons. Vegas taught here last summer, and gave entire satisfaction to the numerous pupils he introduced into the delightful mysteries of Terpsichore. We are assured that he has several new phases of the fancy dances to impart, which the young men and ladies of New Orleans say are perfectly delightful. In these new styles elderly persons can dance without any loss of dignity and more youthful ones with a considerable increase of it. Besides which they possess the advantage of being got up on philosophical principles, and have consequently received the approbation of Mons. Samertine the great poet, statesman, philosopher and christian moralist.

Last Tuesday evening brought with it an astonishing "fete."—A horse attached to a dray came thundering past our office, sans a driver, bound for parts unknown, save to his horses' honor. After sundry attempts, on the part of negroes, boys, etc., to put a stop to his progressing spirit, and a few "two-forty" turns, ran against a post, upsetting said dray, breaking diverse hooks, rings, bolts, strings, and several other things, and, strange to say, escaped without great injury.

We notice a large quantity of fine looking water-melons coming into market, which, by-the-by, are very desirable these long, sultry days.

We had pleasant showers during the latter part of last week.

We call attention to several new advertisements in to-day's paper.
